I travel in my car for my job. Not only is it a pleasure to have XM satellite radio in my car but it is also important when traveling to know what to expect in terms of traffic and wheather in the cities I am traveling to. Instead of limiting XM's ability to provide local information they should be able to expand what they already provide to keep information flowing to their customers. I would hope that our elected officials would see that by limiting XM not only is it a restriction of trade but it is also a restriction of my freedom of choice. Let the NAB push their members to do a better job of broadcasting and then they would not have to worry about satellite radio. I would strongly urge the FCC to reject petition 04-160.
